

Do you have any studies and clinical evidence?

As you may know, we are heavily investing in a significant project: getting our "Kaasen" technology officially certified as a medical device. This is a step that none of our competitors have even begun to take. It's a rigorous and costly process, but it's a testament to our long-term commitment to innovation, safety, and delivering a technology you can trust completely. Our goal is not just to be a leader in the portable market, but to redefine what's possible with cryotherapy by establishing a new medical standard.

We have an abundance of clinical evidence, studies, and research on many of the biological effects that are triggered as a response to the protocols we carry out using Kaasen localised cryotherapy.

These can be found in our Knowledge zone, where you will get full access to our constantly updated database once you become a TruCryo customer.
